Education: Igniting a Passion for STEM through SPARK

Through the SFPUC's Community Benefits Program, Panorama Environmental participated in the 2017 SPARK program, a mentorship opportunity that matches adult mentors with middle school students from the Hunters Point Bayview for 8 weeks. These talented middle-school students dove headfirst into learning about STEM subjects and worked with their Panorama mentors to create a science project. These diverse projects included making slime, learning about traumatic brain injuries, and making a water desalination system.

SPARK students and their Panorama Environmental mentors presented their projects at Spark Discovery Day which brought together more than 650 students from the Bay Area, their families, mentors, companies, philanthropists, educators, city officials and district representatives. Panorama is continuing to work with SPARK in Fall 2017.

"I'm so grateful for the opportunity to be a part of the greater San Francisco community and to be a positive role model for girls who might pursue careers in STEM," said Kara Dewhurst, a mentor from Panorama Environmental.

Education: Empowering Young Women Through Oasis for Girls

Kara is also involved with the Oasis for Girls program, which partners with young women of color aged 14-18 from under-resourced communities in San Francisco. Oasis for Girls cultivates skills, knowledge, and confidence to promote success in high school, college, and beyond. Kara is a donor and a panelist for their Fall 2017 career night.
